We hereby republish the editorial that Cordry & Craig, International presented in its first list many months ago. Viking Coins subscribes to this same philosophy, and will continue to do so.

EXACT GRADING: ITS VALUE TO YOU

"Determining the exact grade of a particular coin is not scientific, but rather subjective. Nevertheless the numismatic fraternity seems reasonably adept at arriving at a consensus "grade" for any given coin when no "buy-sell" transaction is involved. As soon as the factor of "buy-sell" becomes relavant, however, it seemingly distorts the ability of many dealers and collectors to assign a "correct" grade to any particular coin. The reason for this disparity is immediately obvious. Bluntly stated, it is the factor of human greed. Determining whether a 1925D USA dime is "Fine", "VF" or "EF" determines whether it has a catalog value of $4.50, $17.50, or $60.00.

With such a disparity in price between two similar states of preservation, many people cannot overcome the temptation to "increase" the value of any given piece by "overgrading" it. Thus a comparison of unfamiliar dealers' prices for the same coin in the same stated grade is usually a frivolous attempt to determine fair value. Accepting the grading labels of any dealer without personal knowledge of that dealer's standards, relative to accepted norms, can mean economic suicide for the unsuspecting collector. (Witness a recent Coin World in which "Unc" 1925D dimes ranged from $80 to $300.)

To avoid such pitfalls we recommend that collectors learn how to grade and learn how each dealer grades relative to that norm. Such knowledge should be an integral part of every decision to buy or not to buy. Where the collector does not consider himself to be in a position to make such a judgment, he should consider (investigate, if necessary) the dealer's reputation and degree of numismatic knowledge.

Recognizing the eventual advantages of having an excellent reputation for honesty and fairness - combined with a composite 25 years of collector frustration at receiving overgraded coins - we have been influenced to adopt accurate grading standards.

Our grading standards are quite conservative by contemporary American norms, and are similar to contemporary European standards. Our policy of refunding your postage on returns guarantees our belief in these assertions."
